Paul M. Potter. Author of Many Dramas, Is Dead

Body, Massed in Flowers, Best Known for Stage Ver-Lies in State at Courthouse in Bowling Green; Simple Services, at Grave

BOWLING GREEN, Mo., March 7.—
Champ Clark was laid at rest after a simple ceremony in the little mound cemetery here to-day, on his seventy-first birth anniversary. The Democratic leader was buried beside his lather, John Hampton Clark, and two of his children, Champ and Anna, who died in infancy.

There were no eulogies at the grave and the expression frequently was heard that it was a "democratic funeral," in keeping with the stalwart statesman's love of simplicity.

It was felt here that little in the way of oratory and eulogy could be added to the tribute which had been paid to Clark's memory at the Congressional services in Washington, and that Mrs. Clark, wearied by the long railroad journey, would desire that the local exercises be as simple as possible.

In line with this purpose there was and was guickly followed by others.

In line with this purpose there was no funeral sermon at the grave. The exercises, which consisted only of prayers, were conducted by the Rev. Robert S. Boyd, a nephew of Mrs. Clark, and pastor of a Kansas City Presbyterian church.

Prayers also were offered by the Rev. Ray Charles Jarman and the Rev. George C. Hitchcock, both of Bowling Green. In all the prayers were references to Mr. Clark's uprightness, honesty and force of character.

Before the services at the grave the St. Louis committee, headed by former Governor Gardner and Congressmand-clect Hawes, went to "Honeyshuck," the Clark home, to pay their respects to Mrs. Clark.

The forenoon was cloudy and chilly, but just before the burial the sun shone brightly.

The special train carrying United States Senators and Representatives, many personal friends of Clark and a large delegation from St. Louis arrived here at noon.

The Court House rotunda, where the body lay in state several hours, was massed with flowers, some of which were used at the funeral/ceremonies in Washington.
